SKS establishes subsidiary in Turkey

Qualified advice and service for automated welding

The German SKS Welding Systems GmbH, based in Kaiserslautern, has founded a new subsidiary: Starting from 1 November 2014, SKS Welding Systems Makina Sanayi ve Ticaret Limited Şirketi is serving users and investors in Turkey. Its offer to SKS' customers includes, in particular, professional advice, individual solutions and a faster service. The person to ensure this is Serdar C. Arıcan, Managing Director of SKS' Turkish subsidiary. He has extensive experience in the field of automated welding technology. His industrial knowledge and technical skills should additionally foster customer satisfaction and the development of the market.

With the establishment of its Turkish subsidiary, SKS Welding Systems further expands its international presence. "With our Turkish subsidiary, we are expanding our international network and thus our customer proximity in important industrial countries. This ensures that our product developments – specifically for robot-assisted arc welding processes – and our technical support reach the users and in-country subsidiaries of our international customers on-site," says Managing Director Markus Klein explaining an aspect of SKS' corporate strategy.

The owner-managed company has been serving industrial users of automated welding technology for 25 years. A focus of the company's activities is on the automotive industry and its suppliers; other focus areas include stationary and circular welding equipment. Since Managing Director Dieter Klein founded SKS back in 1989, the welding specialist has evolved from a specialized dealer to a developer and manufacturer of automated welding technology and today has a leading position in this technology sector.
